Hearing-impaired people cannot hear sounds well. How do they “hear” words then? Many hearing-impaired people use sign languages. They talk with their hands. There are two kinds of hand signs in English. Some hand signs are for the whole words. For example, there is one hand sign for the word love. There are hand signs for different actions and things, too. The second kind of hand sign is fingerprinting. In fingerprinting, there is a sign for every letter in the alphabet. For example, to fingerprints the word love, a person makes four different signs. It is a lot slower to fingerprints, but it is useful for signing names and technical terminology. People can use both kinds of hand signs together.

48. How do hearing-impaired people communicate?
   (A) They make sounds by shouting or yelling.
   (B) They can communicate with people verbally without any miscommunication.
   (C) They use their fingers to write down the things in their minds.
   (D) They use their hands to express themselves.

49. Which of the following words should a hearing-impaired person fingerprint?
   (A) electricity  (B) love  (C) turn   (D) bread

50. What can hearing-impaired people do if they want to express the word drink?
   (A) They can fingerprints and make six different signs
   (B) They can use one hand sign.
   (C) They can sign up for learning a new language.
   (D) They can ask people they know to translate for them.
