Questions 41-45 are based on the following article

Shopping is sometimes an irrational act, because people tend to buy more than they need, spend more than they intended to. How can you spend wisely and save more money? You’ll need to teach yourself to be a disciplined and intelligent buyer, and accumulate savings instead of credit card debts. First you need to ask yourself the following questions when you go shopping:

1. Is this item something I can’t do without?
2. Do I have something at home similar to this, which I can use instead?
3. How long will I have to work to pay for this?
4. Do I just want this? Or really need it?

Next we come to some simple every day strategies to get you saving:

When you buy on sale, you are saving more. Ask the store when the item you want will be on sale. Schedule your purchase during the time when the stores have their annual sale.

Cut out discount coupons, and use these, for these coupons will give you as much as 20% savings. Make it a habit to buy the store brand products, and constantly look out for better prices, from reliable manufacturers.
